The Residential Award

As the government grapples with the challenge of delivering on its ambitious house-building targets, the profession is calling that quantity isn't delivered at the cost of quality. There has never been a more pressing need to highlight – and to learn from – precedents for residential projects that have flourished over time.

The jury is interested in a wide range of issues including: design and constructional quality, long-term environmental performance, the ability to facilitate healthy and sustainable lifestyles and a proven track record in creating communities that thrive.

Read what the judges had to say about previous winners for a taste of the issues that made the successful projects stand out.

“I’m not interested in decoration. And I’m not interested in fashion. I actually dislike fashion. I’m interested in design, and great design lasts forever. Like the Victorians, I want to build buildings that last forever. Buildings that are honest, that are straightforward, that stand the test of time”

About the awards

We launched our awards as a direct riposte to the prevalent awards culture. Instead of focussing on what's new, what's fresh, what's perfect, what's pristine, we look at what has endured, what's flexible, what's adaptable, what works, what performs. Submitting an entry isn't about salesmanship or showmanship. It's about engaging with this discussion; revisiting projects with the benefit of hindsight and reflecting on lessons learnt.

The aim is not to hold an annual beauty parade, but to establish a canon; an archive of projects that represent best practice and have demonstrated their worth. And to demonstrate the long-term value of projects that stand the test of time. Crucially, these awards exist to make the long-term value of architecture visible: to show that flexibility, longevity, and performance are not secondary virtues, but the most meaningful measure of success.

Great Bow Yard, Langport, by Stride Treglown

“Still radical and fresh after almost 20 years – the residents’ commitment to their buildings and to their community demonstrates that Great Bow Yard offers a clear template for the kind of houses we should be building today.”

Timber Wharf, Manchester, by Howells with Urban Splash

“Dubbed ‘The Barbican of the North’ by its residents, this well-crafted block could sit as easily on the Côte d’Azur as canal-side in Castlefield. In our modern world, where affordability, sustainability, MMC and city densification are so key, this building was 20 years ahead of its time.”

Park Hill Estate, Sheffield, by Hawkins\Brown & Studio Egret West

“Built by Sheffield Council’s architects department in 1961, Park Hill’s New Brutalism was synonymous with Labour’s commitment to social change. The skilful reimagining of this building has turned it from an intransigent relic of times gone by, to a contemporary, vibrant ‘work in progress’ that will continue to evolve. The scale of the project’s ambition blew the jury away.”

Abode at Great Kneighton, by Proctor & Matthews

“A rare example of a project where the landscape and public realm have been afforded the same attention to detail as the buildings themselves. Over a decade on from its completion in 2013, this sensitive reinterpretation of Cambridgeshire village vernacular has evolved into a much-loved sustainable neighbourhood with homes that are flexible and robust.”

Why enter?

- Demonstrate your ability to produce work that deliver long-term value over time.
- Showcase your expertise in this sector to a wide audience of judges, collaborators and clients
- Reconnect with clients and collaborators and to reflect on lessons learned
- High-profile media exposure with all shortlisted projects announced on Architecture Today's website and social media channels
- All winning projects covered extensively on Architecture Today's website and in a special awards issue of *Architecture Today
- All winning projects are rephotographed by leading architectural photographer Timothy Soar
- Teams behind the winning projects record a presentation on their scheme, which is widely promoted through AT's media channels and forms part of an archive of best-in-field projects that have stood the test of time

“For me, the greatest reward an architect can receive is history itself—and these awards capture exactly that. They celebrate the enduring relationships we build with our clients long after a project is complete”

*Dav Bansal,
Howells*

Process

All entries are thoroughly reviewed by our Awards Panel, who typically select three finalists in each category. The teams behind the shortlisted projects are invited to present their project to our expert jury at the Live Finals, a day of live crits which will take place on 16th July at The Society Building in central London.

We work with the successful entrants to record their presentations for the AT archive of outstanding buildings that have stood the test of time, a free-to-access resource for academia, practice and clients.

The winning project in each category is rephotographed by Timothy Soar and published on AT's website and in a special awards issue of Architecture Today.

“These awards have real integrity”

Winners' Party

The winners will be announced at an awards party on Thursday 12th November at 76 Southbank, a Grade II listed building designed for IBM by Sir Denys Lasdun and completed in 1983, and recently refurbished and extended by Allford Hall Monaghan Morris for Wolfe Commercial Properties.

“This is a critically important award, particularly in the era we live in, where responsibility is increasingly central to architectural practice. This is not about designing something wonderful and then disappearing; it’s about standing by your decisions and a powerful way of reflecting on those responsibilities, and reminding ourselves what they really mean”

*Peter Bishop,
The Bartlett School of Architecture, UCL*

Entry criteria

The Test of Time Awards are designed to showcase, celebrate and share knowledge about buildings that have stood the test of time.

Projects will only be considered if they have been in use for at least three years and can demonstrate a strong track record for delivering on their environmental, functional, community and cultural ambitions.

Each category is open to new-build and retrofit projects. Projects can be of any scale or typology and in any part of the world, but must have been completed before April 1st 2023 to be eligible for entry.

You do not have to be a registered architect to submit a project. We actively encourage submissions from consultants, clients, charities, residents and community groups.

Group submissions are particularly welcome. Some of the strongest submissions and presentations have been made by a designer in tandem with a collaborator or client.

“I want to congratulate Architecture Today for doing what many of us have dreamed of happening for a long time. To reward buildings, not out of fashion the day they’ve finished, not because of the way they look, but how they actually work out in practice, and how they stand the test of time”

*Sunand Prasad
Perkins&Will*
